

Lorraine is a retired anthropologist whose speciality is ethno-history. Over the last several decades she has worked as a researcher on specific claims for various First Nations in British Columbia. Before receiving a PhD from UBC, she taught First Nations history and Women Studies at several colleges and universities in the province.

Lorraine moved to Tsawwassen in 2007 via Kitsilano, Ottawa, Montreal, and Cheltenham, England.

This is her first-year volunteering for ElderCollege and she is looking forward to contributing to the success of this society in creating stimulating educational programs for seniors.
